

In this issue of the Annals of Family Medicine

Community Health Center Use 312

Oregon's Medicaid "experiment" provides insight into how the ACA might affect community health center use.

ACO Salary and Quality Compensation 321

Physician payment in ACOs is poorly aligned with cost saving incentives in a nationally representative sample.

Sleep Apnea and Panic Disorder 325

Sleep apnea may be a risk factor for panic disorder.

Erectile Dysfunction and Cardiometabolic Disorders 331

Erectile dysfunction is a marker for undiagnosed diabetes, especially in middle-aged men.

Sexual Activity and Satisfaction in Older Women 336

In midlife and older women, psychosocial factors matter more to sexual satisfaction than aging.

Anomalous Bupropion Prescriptions 343

Data from Ontario suggest possible increase in bupropion misuse.

Primary Care Process 347

Information flow and misaligned goals impede care, according to low income, chronically ill patients and clinic staff.

Catching Up With the HPV Vaccine 354

Key issues in promoting HPV immunization include tracking the vaccine series and tailored counseling strategies.

Cervical Cancer Screening Guidelines 361

Chlamydia screening for 15-21 year old females decreased after a guideline change, without a decrease in office visits.

Search Filters for Family Medicine 364

New search filters can be used to retrieve family medicine-relevant articles for researchers and clinicians.

Accountable Communities for Health 367

Early examples show potential for accountable care organizations to address social determinants of health.

Affordable Care? 370

When an uninsured patient dies, a family physician reflects on how lives are affected by the broken US health care system.

Personalizing Personalized Health Care 373

Patient-centered medical homes provide an opportunity to implement genomic medicine in a learning health care system.

Openings 381

An encounter with a long time patient inspires a family physician to reflect on parenthood, survival, and healing.