

In this issue of the Annals of Family Medicine

Healthy Diet and Physical Activity 109

Practical opportunities to make life style changes are associated with evidence of behavior change.

General Practitioners' Empathy and Health Outcomes 117

Health outcomes, patient expectations, and GP consultation behaviours differ in high and low deprivation areas.

Advance Care Planning Group Visits 125

A group visit can promote advance care planning.

E-Consultations at the Primary Care-Specialty Care Interface 133

In a safety net health care system, electronic consults for cardiology referrals shorten median time to consultant review.

Clinical Communication and Antibiotic Expectations 141

Clinician communication and prescribing behavior confirm parents' beliefs that antibiotics are needed for more severe illnesses.

Patient Activation and Behavior Change 148

Clinicians with high measures of patient activation use five key strategies to support patient behavior change.

Disclosure of Sexual Orientation and HIV 155

Rural men who have sex with men and disclose sexual orientation to their clinician are much more likely to receive recommended tests and immunizations.

Primary Care Value Model 159

A new framework defines patient-centered value and value-based primary care transformation.

Collaboration in Dementia Case Management 166

Case managers for people with dementia help address the needs of both patients and caregivers.