Faculty Development Fellow

The University of Virginia Department of Family Medicine seeks applicants for a one-year Faculty Development Fellowship. Fellows are hired as faculty at the rank of Clinical Instructor and are able to see patients independently and precept.

The fellowship focuses on 4 key areas:

- 1) advanced skills in teaching, practicing and writing pertaining to evidence-based medicine
- 2) hands-on experience in curriculum development and instruction across a range of teaching formats
- 3) skills in research and scholarship
- 4) professional development and socialization

In addition to coursework and teaching, fellows practice in one of our five outpatient continuity clinics. Fellows also are able to individually tailor their program, including opportunities to work with at-risk populations (LGBTQ+, refugees and immigrants, cancer survivors), as well as developing inpatient and/or procedural skills. Faculty Development Fellows have multiple and varied opportunities to experience growth as a clinician, teacher, and scholar and work in a setting that values diversity and inclusion. The University of Virginia is located in Charlottesville, VA. Surrounded by the Blue Ridge Mountains, Charlottesville is a cultured, cosmopolitan community with a charming, small-town feel. UVA is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer.

MD or DO degree is required and must be Board-certified or board eligible by the American Board of Family Medicine or the Osteopathic Family Medicine Board by the start date.

Applicants must apply through <https://hr.virginia.edu/careers-uva/job-openings> by November 12, 2021.
